We need additional training and education to compliment the increased usage of technology and AI

Using money from the Local Skills Improvement Fund, Hartpury University and Hartpury College is developing and delivering short courses on technological advancements and digitalisation in agriculture. Using this fund, they have also developed a Digital Studio for students and employers to utilise and learn from

We need more soft skills training, particularly Project Management and Change Management

In response to the LSIP findings, Cirencester College has been working collaboratively with local employers to determine the relevant skills needed for the workforce and upskilling staff to deliver these skills

We need improved career guidance in the sector

We are working with Gloucestershire County Council, Gloucestershire Employment and Skills Hub and The Careers & Enterprise Company to review the Gloucestershire Skills and Careers Portal and ensure it is suitable to support careers advice and guidance

We need new provision; the industry is evolving and education must reflect that

Aligning with LSIP priorities, Hartpury University and Hartpury College are leading a skills review, and have developed their own agriculture and livestock foundation programme, set for delivery from September 2024
